The 3 day workshops include observation and analysis of treatment of selected hospital patients, practical instruction in Classical Technique as well as lectures in Osteopathic Medicine. Attendees will gain most from this course by participating in all the practical and theoretical elements of the course.

Who should attend?

Graduate Osteopaths and undergraduates already attending clinical training, interested in observing the role of Classical Osteopathic Medicine including the treatment of acute and chronic pain syndromes as practiced and integrated in a renowned multidisciplinary Institute of Pain Medicine.

What is included?

A full 3 day program consisting of 21 CPD hours consisting of demonstrations, practical workshops and lectures by Mervyn Waldman and fellow staff members on Osteopathy and Pain Medicine of relevance to informed Osteopathic practice.
